@OTalk_ I do, more often than not. We were introduced to the idea of using social media professionally during undergrad @QMU_OT - I had the opportunity to 'live tweet' from a lecturer's account during a Q&A event, doing that convinced me of the benefits :) #otalk

@OTalk_ Q1. I like to tweet at events, often w/a photo too. Can be a nice way to keep a log of interesting things you learn/see/share or experience, so you can look back over in your own tweet timeline later. Bit like an #OTalk thread! 📲 Hello 🌟 btw.

Bill Wong, OTD, OTR/L @BillWongOT

9 days ago

@OTalk_ @Keirwales I think this depends on how willing attendees are willing to tweet at these presentations. If they are not too enthusiastic, it is hard to generate outside discussions. #otalk

Miriam @DrMiriamOT

9 days ago

@OTalk_ @QMU_OT Although sharing with others is a big part of social media, for me tweeting through events has also been a way of more actively engaging my thinking #OTalk

Hello #OTalk

Jacki Liddle @jacki_liddle

@OTalk_ I do- to amplify the audience for the message being shared. Many people are not able to access conferences and this helps share the information. I mainly directly share and don't editorialise #OTalk

OTalk @OTalk_

@DrMiriamOT @QMU_OT Did you find tweeting from another person's account was different from your own? I always feel like I have my big girl pants on when on the #otalk account! (Should clarify it's @GillyGorry )

Bill Wong, OTD, OTR/L @BillWongOT

@BillWongOT @OTalk_ @Keirwales And often #OTalk amongst themselves trying to process what they've heard, before having the wit to Tweet... it can feel rude to use #socialmedia whilst in company of colleagues, unless taking a photo as proof of attendance or if a particular issue stands out to share "back home".

 @OTalk_ It helps me take a step beyond my usual note taking (writing a running summary, as a concentration aid) to more reflective, engaged thinking. When I tweet something during an event, it's usually because it's a thought or idea I can really get behind & want to capture #OTalk

@Keirwales @BillWongOT @margaretOT360 Tbh, I have no idea how to use Linkedin! I add people on FB if I know them in real life and want to be in contact, I follow people on Twitter if I want to hear their thoughts - on Linkedin I mostly just add random OTs that it suggests to me in an effort to "network" 😂 #OTalk

@BillWongOT @OTalk_ @Keirwales @ASPHFT That's a serious challenge within such restrictions to run a TEDx event: what is rationale? And how do you break even financially? Is there any restriction on podcasts, webinars or live Tweeting such as #OTalk might do?

9 days ago

Diana_Sheridan @DianaSheridan11

@BillWongOT @OTalk_ @Keirwales @ASPHFT So essentially you have to rely on sourcing minimal costings for venue, catering, security, technology or organise advertising or sell pitches to hold a marketplace? Is rationale to focus on the message rather than the venue/ catering/ profit? So #OTshow or #OTalk could do this?
