Let's get started! Question 1: what are the main factors influencing/ that did influence your first post as a newly qualified? #OTalk

#OTalk @OTalk_

a day ago

Excellent question.

Margaret Spencer @margaretOT360

a day ago

It was the same area as I went into OT to work in. Working with people with learning disabilities was what I was doing as a volunteer . #otalk

Emily Suffield @emilysuffield

a day ago

@93SophieC I went for a mixed rotation as it offered a wide range of experiences and a good support structure #otalk

Gilly- does- Doing @GillyGorry

a day ago

@93SophieC I want to feel like a "real OT" actually think I was a bit of a role snob and made many assumptions. I mostly wanted a challenge and a place to have a voice. #otalk. Switching between accounts. @OTalk_

Rachel Johnson OT Seashell Trust @RJOTSeashell

a day ago

@93SophieC It was quite a long time ago for me 🙄 but I chose an area I had done a practice placement in as I felt that would help my confidence. #OTalk

Carolina Cordero 🌈 @colourful_ot

@93SophieC I knew from my placements (particularly my final placement in a CAMHS clinic) that I wanted to work in mental health so that was a big part of my decision #OTalk

Katie Phipps @OTKatieP

@93SophieC I felt as though I needed to experience a range of settings so went for a rotation - it's so hard to know where you want to be! It's been challenging but has really helped me build my core OT skills and resilience #OTalk

It was 35 years ago for me, and I still think it was the right choice as I still work in that area 😊 #otalk

JasminOT @JasminLaffy

a day ago

@93SophieC I went with private practice that could offer me a range of clients with good support. Also I loved community OT in my placements #otalk

🇬🇧 Sherlyn 🇬🇧 @sherlynmelody

@93SophieC #otalk I went with my gut! I had applied for an NHS posts & Social services post, got interviews. I hate interviews. I was offered both post. Told lady at NHS my situation & she said can you make a decision I have other people to call. #shockhorror!! Ok hello social services 🙄

My first position was in 2000 and jobs were hard to find in my location at that time. I did land a position that offered a well-rounded experience in a variety of settings. It turned out to be a wonderful first job! #OTtalk

@93SophieC @GillyGorry @OTalk_ I definitely relate to wanting a challenge - I knew when I read the description of my current role that it would be a bit more responsibility than I might have elsewhere since I would be working as the only OT on the team but I liked the idea of aiming high 😊 #OTalk

Hayley OT @hayleyot1

@93SophieC Always knew I wanted to work in a mental health setting, previous degree in psychology #OTalk

Susan Griffiths @SusanGriffiths5

@93SophieC I knew when I took on this first post that it was not an area I wanted to stay in but I was able to get 9 months post qualifying experience before getting my dream job (at the time) in mental health. It easier to get a job once you got your foot in the door! #OTalk

Sophie Cresswell @93SophieC

@OTEllenUK Yes the type of role as well at the population we want to work with is a big decision that placement can give us insight into #OTalk

Ben Kirkwood @OT_BenK

a day ago

@93SophieC I think so as I found placements you really did get to see OT in action compared to uni theory based work. It also allowed me to learn about different models of practice and ways of working! #OTalk

Sophie Cresswell @93SophieC

@sherlynmelody What a great approach, anywhere you go with enthusiasm will always be a positive learning experience ! #OTalk

Jack McKnight @JackMcK50281163

@93SophieC I have only applied for one the things that are influencing me are an area of practice I'm interested in or rotation to see what I like. Also I'm a mature student with a family who have been through alot during my qualifying process so geographical area is a factor. #OTalk

Enable Me Solutions- OT & Case Management Services

@CarolineSturdy

a day ago

@93SophieC #OTalk all my placements were NHS so naturally I felt like I should apply for a rotational post. 6 yrs later moved to housing & I've been in the community every since. When I trained there weren't many SS placements so I never experienced it as a student. Is that the same now?

latish @tis7ha

@OTEllenUK @93SophieC Placement gave me an insight, I think I always knew I wanted to work in the hospital environment. Knowing rotations were an option to build on skill set & gain experience in various areas definitely sold it for me starting out as a NQ🙌 #OTalk

@93SophieC @OTEllenUK I think my placements influenced me in the other way - I didn't feel I knew enough about working in mental health from my 1 placement in a really specialist setting so I wanted a chance to explore that :) #OTalk

Chloe Dickson @ChloeDicksonOT

@93SophieC My first post was influenced by my final placement as a student. Loved my time in paediatrics and was desperate to go back. Was so lucky to get my job in my final placement #otalk

♥️ JM Sherlyn GB ♥️ @sherlynmelody

@93SophieC #otalk I found that to be the case with all my placements. I was enthusiastic coz I really wanted to be the best OT 😊 It was a career change for me and my dream job.

a day ago

@93SophieC I went to visit the trust & was really impressed by what the staff were saying & pilots they were carrying out. I also really wanted to complete a preceptorship programme to help transition/bridge the gap! #OTalk

Question 2 coming up.... What are the possible benefits and challenges of entering a static, third sector post as a newly qualified practitioner ? I definitely had some FOMO (fear of missing out) at first ! #OTalk

#OTalk @OTalk_

Another good question. #otalk
