@Jeni_woods_OT Currently brow betting my employer into supporting my MSc, however I've heard of lots of seconded support from local NHS employers. Otherwise it seems to be the normal self funded options #OTalk

Rachael @RachaelD_OT

a month ago

@Jeni_woods_OT Honestly, I'm not aware of any. Other than to complete an MSc #OTalk

A2. In the USA, the door is not impossible, but much harder for OT practitioners with clinical doctorates to get involved in research. Good networking + being opportunistic is really important for someone like that (and this includes me) #otalk

@Jeni_woods_OT I'm currently studying a MSc in Clinical Research (self-funded) but there are NIHR schemes, RCOT & Elizabeth Casson trust findings available I believe! Just not sure will those be applicable to non-UK citizens like me when trained in the UK #OTalk
