@Jeni_woods_OT I attended a session where by OTs who are doing research spoke to us about their projects and funding options #OTalk

Jeni Woods @Jeni_woods_OT

a month ago

@jsco100 What support do you have at work to access these opportunities? #OTalk

Sarah Innes @SarahInnesOT

a month ago

@Jeni_woods_OT Not really, other than doing a post graduate degree #otalk

Dr Jenny Preston MBE @preston_jenny

a month ago

@Jeni_woods_OT Slightly different at the moment unfortunately but also some great PhD opportunities through some of the charities. I've supported several PhD students funded through the @mssociety #OTalk

Bill Wong, OTD, OTR/L @BillWongOT

a month ago

hi! a much better route will be a PhD. But then, that door is pretty much shut if you had a rocky beginning in your OT school journey in the USA... if you try to go from MSOT to PhD that is! #otalk

Dr Catriona Connell @DrCConnell

a month ago

If I had my time again - I would consider an MRes rather than taught post grad #OTalk

Jeni Woods @Jeni_woods_OT

@BillWongOT What research projects have you been involved with so far? #OTalk

Hello my name is Jim @OT_Jim

a month ago

@Jeni_woods_OT @OTalk @NikkiDanielsOT Currently the Advanced OT practice at @ot_uon or the ACP OT at @BrightonACP #OTalk

@Jeni_woods_OT Our service lead is very committed in expanding our team's research capacity, so a lot of support, which is great. I just need to decide where to go with it! #OTalk

Bill Wong, OTD, OTR/L @BillWongOT

That said, there are people in the USA who get a clinical doctorate in OT first and then pursue a PhD in a relevant field later. Props to people who pursue this route! (I am not one of these kinds of people, though.) #otalk

Dr Jenny Preston MBE @preston_jenny

@Jeni_woods_OT @OTalk @jsco100 Always link it to your PDP and show how your learning and research development can also help your service/organisation #OTalk

@DrCConnell Can you tell us a bit more about what factors are influencing that decision? Might be really useful to help others with future planning #OTalk

@Jeni_woods_OT #OTalk providing postural bed management support in nursing care and the impact wellbeing, independence, health, skin and care standards. Prison work - turning some of the care workers in prisons into a paid employment opportunity. A few others too-all linked to care act.

JDCC Annell Ready? Could you tell us why? I've been placing an OTD as my first choice over a PHD, would be great to hear the reverse point of view #OTalk

@OT_Jim @OTalk @NikkiDanielsOT @ot_uon @BrightonACP What made you decide to apply for the MSc? #OTalk

This sounds like a great opportunity to develop on the research career journey #OTalk

Bill Wong, OTD, OTR/L @BillWongOT

I think my overall advice in terms of A2 is- know what you are capable to try and have fluid plans based on how your OT journey is going! #otalk

Dr Jenny Preston MBE @preston_jenny

a month ago

@jsco100 @Jeni_woods_OT Do you have any links with your local HEI or connect with your R&D Manager. It's good to get some research experience through multi-centre trials and you don't have all the hard work to do #OTalk

Ros French @RosFrench1

@OT_Jim @Jeni_woods_OT #OTalk yes I applied for my MSc ACP course last year but hadn't studied within the last 5 years so did a module to get credits. I enquired again through the trust and MSc Advanced OT isn't on the list they will funded. huge competition for ACP so decided to have a career break!

Q2.What advice would you offer to anyone considering formal study, such as a PhD or professional doctorate, to further their research career? #OTalk

Dr Jenny Preston MBE @preston_jenny

A3. I had a rocky beginning in my OT school journey. It also took me a while to process in terms of understanding what OT is all about. So, I didn't get outstanding grades during my MSOT program in the USA. #otalk

katy @katy92806851

@BillWongOT I just cant imagine me doing a PhD- it feels a completely different world to the one I'm in but maybe I build my own barriers to this rather than dealing with the challenge.

 @Jeni_woods_OT @OTalk @NikkiDanielsOT @ot_uon @BrightonACP I'm really keen on improving my practice, I spend an inordinate amount of my working day justifying my clinical reasoning and wanted to be able to demonstrate that academically and maybe develop a better way of doing what we currently do.  @Jeni_woods_OT @OTalk @jsco100 #OTalk for me personally, I had a really good coaching session through my professional lead which lead me to decide what I needed to do personally. After that very little support and no funding so decided on a career break for my own development.

 A clinical doctorate became my choice because I know there would be some value in having that ASAP rather than waiting for the right time to go for one. #otalk

SYMPLUR @Jeni_woods_OT Seems to be a lot of opportunities at present, OT specific for postgrad & then more general. @VdTMoCAFUK & @MOTION_Research recently hosted an event to support clinicians in engaging in research. There seems to be a real push since the RCOT top ten priorities were shared! #OTalk

@Jeni_woods_OT So much! Passion for the subject area, it's a long, hard, challenging, exciting, development process. They say it's a roller coaster ride and it's certainly that. The benefits outweighing the negatives so far #otalk

@uk_james @jsco100 @Jeni_woods_OT Just go to them with some ideas or loosely formed research questions. They will find someone with similar research interests or methodological expertise to help you. It's amazing what that leads to 👍 #OTalk

@OTalk As a BSc student, I am particularly curious how long people practiced once qualified before stepping towards their careers in research? #OTalk

Bill Wong, OTD, OTR/L @BillWongOT

I explored the prospects of a post doc after I got my clinical doctorate... but I decided against it because I felt that building up my clinical experiences would provide me more options down the line. #otalk
